Memories

I live inside my memories, The good times of the past How they used to make me smile, And how they went too fast. Now my days are lifeless And my poems have no flare. There seems to be no feeling in them, The words just sit and stare. Oh, how I love the memories, The sad times of the past. Oh, how I wish I could hold on to them, How can I make them last? What is a memory? Is it something you can see? All I know is that memories Mean everything to me.

Mary E. Sprigg

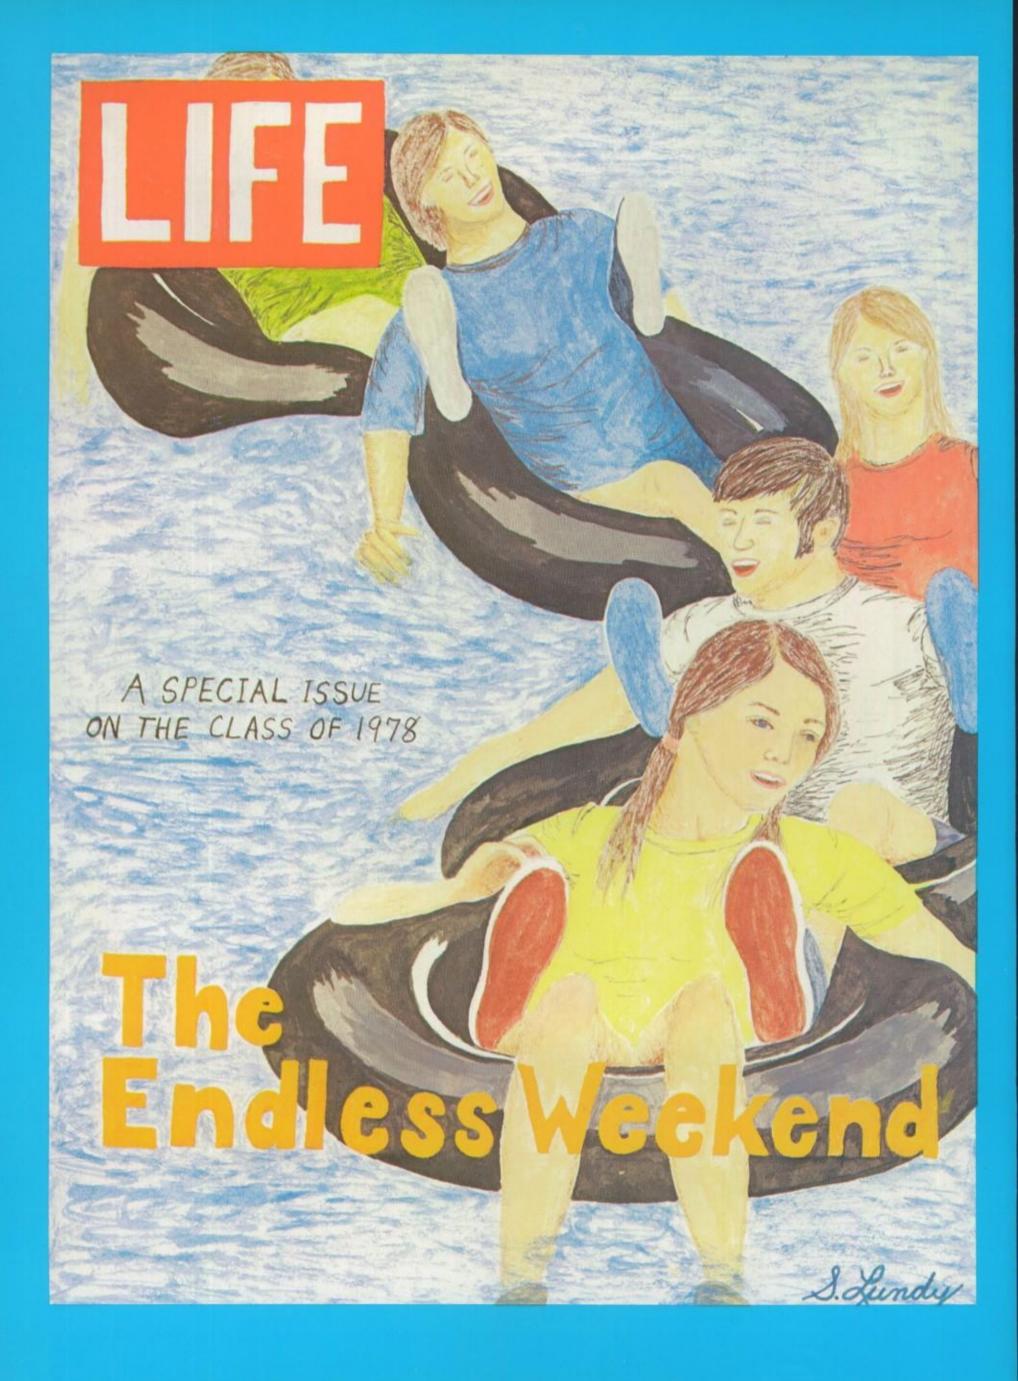

The Way Things Are

It's today,
The road,
The knowing the road is there.
A few brambles,
A few tangles,
A few scratches,
A rough stone against your toe,
But still, you've got to go
And take it.
Fast, sometimes,
Or slow,
But go — everywhere anywhere you need to go.

The time has come when we must go our separate ways. It is a time of parting, of goodbyes and most of all for reflection. And remembrances of things past seem to pervade my waking hours.

For three years we were as one. You generously shared your moments of glory with me and graciously accepted occasional sharp critiques, knowing they were proffered with concern and even affection. There were times of sadness but they were far outweighed by the joys of commeraderie, the happiness of sharing and the pride which came from mutual respect.

You have earned my respect. I trust I have been deserving of yours. What more is there to say but that it has been good, VERY GOOD. Thank you, each of you! Please keep in touch.

For the last time,

Harry Joe Brown

It's over ... yes, it's finally over.

But in our wake we have built such pride, unity and respect that it is difficult to just say farewell. We left our building alive. We created a mood which could not be broken. We went through tough times as well as joyous times. We've been through a lot together but no matter how tough the endeavor, we worked as one. we showed the administration, teachers, parents and community that in a world where you often hear the worst about youth, where the good things get little notice, our positive performance was unaltered.

But now we must part. We must carry what we have learned into the world with us. No matter which direction life may take you, strive to achieve perfection. I wish you all great success. These times together I shall never forget.

But now it's over . . . yes, it's finally over.

Sincerely,

Scott Cohen – Vice President Debra Mezzy – Secretary

Junior Skating Party

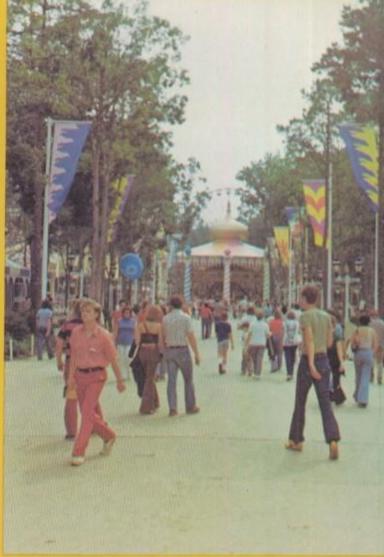

In keeping with the class of '78's individuality, we were the first class to have a skating party in tenth grade. As a result of it's success, we had two skating parties the following year. They were held at Cornwell Heights, and the '78 spirit was outstanding, as usual.

Sophomore Class Trip

Great Adventure

On June 17, 1976, at 12:00 noon, we boarded the fourteen buses headed for Great Adventure. We enjoyed a beautiful afternoon at the Safari and Entertainment Park of Great Adventure. Even though we were the first class to spend our Sophomore Picnic at Great Adventure, the turnout was tremendous and will set a trend for future classes.

Presents for St. Christopher's

During the holiday season of our sophomore year the class of "78" took upon their shoulders the rewarding task of buying Christmas and Chanukah gifts for the children of St. Christopher's Hospital. In anticipation, many students got involved and succeeded in collecting a large amount of money. Armed with presents, best wishes, and Santa in the lead, the Class of "78" brought the spirit of Christmas to St. Christopher's Children's Hospital.

Washington

Do you recall that brisk morning, the eighth of November, 1976, when the Jr. Class of '78 anxiously awaited to begin its journey to Washington D.C. It seems like only yesterday that we toured the Capitol, Arlington Cemetery, Washington Monument, Lincoln Memorial, and the Smithsonian. It seems like only yesterday that we were honored greatly by a wreath laying ceremony at the Tomb of the Unknown Soldier. It seems like only yesterday that we were juniors; now it seems like only tomorrow that we will be graduates.

On January 26, 1978 the Senior Class Trip began. By 7:00 twelve buses were filled and on their way to Tamiment Ski Resort. We arrived to a wonderful brunch, following which there was swimming, ice skating, dance lessons, and other activities. The afternoon was filled with games. By 6:00 we were ready for dinner. After our dinner we had a disco dance, which was exciting for everyone. Although our plans for this trip had been changed a bit, it came through in the true "78" spirit and was a great experience.

Move-Up Day

June 9, 1977

While sitting in assembly one Wednesday morning, Mr. Brown announced that on June 9, 1977, we were to dress nicely on account of Move-Up Day. But what exactly did "Move-Up" day mean? Well, everybody had his own interpretation. But most people didn't know what to think.

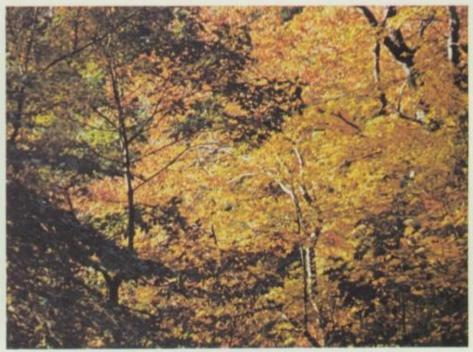

Move-Up day was the day in which the Junior class of '78 became the Senior Class of 1978. It was when five students of the class of '77 gave up their postions as Student Council president, Honor Society president, Class president, Town-Crier Editor-in-Chief, and Year-book Editor-in-Chief and passed them on to five students of the Class of '78 as a tradition of good luck.

From then on we were "on our way up" to the top!

The best thing about the future is that it comes only one day at a time.

Don't Quit

When things go wrong, as they sometimes will,
When the road you're trudging seems all uphill,
When the funds are low and the debts are high,
And you want to smile, but you have to sigh,
When care is pressing you down a bit ...
Rest if you must, but don't you quit
Life is queer with its twists and turns,
As everyone of us sometimes learns,
many a person turns about
When they might have won had they stuck it out
Don't give up though the pace seems slow .
You may succeed with another blow
Often the struggler has given up
When he might have captured the victor's cup
And he learned too late when the night came down
How close he was to the golden crown Success is failure turned inside out
So stick to the fight when you're hardest hit ...
Its when things seem worst that you musn't quit

Look to this Day

Yesterday is already a dream and tomorrow is only a vision, but today, well lived, makes every yesterday a dream of happiness, and every tomorrow a vision of hope

At the Cross Roads

You to the left and I to the right
For the ways of men must sever —
And it well may be for a day and a night,
And it well may be forever.
But whether we meet or whether we part
(For our ways are past our knowing),
A pledge from the heart to its fellow heart
On the ways we all are going!
Here's luck!
For we know not where we are going.

Whether we win or whether we lose
With the hands that life is dealing,
It is not we not the ways we choose
But the fall of the cards that's sealing.
There's a fate in love and a fate in fight,
And the best of us all go under —
And whether we're wrong or whether we're right,
We win, sometimes, to our wonder.
Here's luck!
That we may not yet go under!

With a steady swing and an open brow
We have trapped the ways together,
But we're clasping hands at the cross roads now
In the Fiend's own night for weather.
And whether we bleed or whether we smile
In the leagues that lie before us
The ways of life are many a mile
And the dark of fate is o're us.
Here's luck!
And a cheer for the dark before us!

You to the left and I to the right,
For the ways of men must sever,
And it well may be for a day and a night,
And it well may be forever!
But whether we live or whether we die
(For the end is past our knowing),
Here's two frank hearts and the open sky,
Be a fair or ill wind blowing!
Here's luck!
In the teeth of all winds blowing

Our long and satisfying journey towards our goal has finally been reached. The Class of "78", with the leadership of Harry J. Brown, Roger Price, and the total cooperation of the entire class, has set a new standard for the forthcoming classes to emulate. Old standards have been raised to new heights that have previously been unreachable by other classes. Our accomplishments have proven to the faculty, believers and skeptics alike, that our class was a truly unique group of individuals.

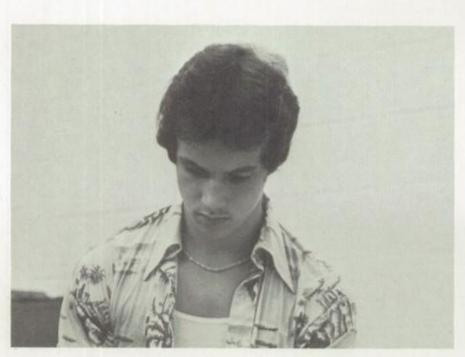

The confines of our school have never limited the possibilities that stretch out over our horizon. We have as a class contributed to the community in a variety of gratifying and helpful ways. The community will remember us as being that special class on their way up.

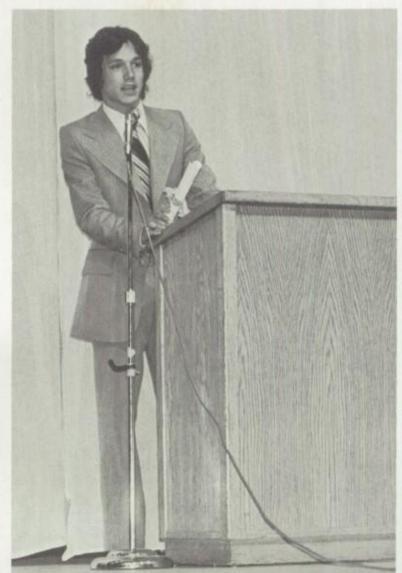

New adventures unravel before us as we all go our separate ways, yet that special Class of "78" togetherness will never die. Take it light and make the best of the future.

The Colonial Chapter of the National Honor Society is dedicated to scholarship, service, leadership, and character. In order for an individual student to become a member of the society, he or she must be either a junior or a senior, have at least a 95 weighted average from all classes, and be involved in both school and community related activities. Members of the Honor Society, in turn, serve the school by providing tutoring services to any student needing help in an academic subject.

The annual installation of new members is the focal point of any Honor Society year. This year, on Nov. 22, a pledge was taken by both new and old members alike to uphold the standards of the National Honor Society in front of faculty, parents, and local officials.

Rolling Hill Hospital is a paramedical program offered to students disillusioned with the conventional high school system. Thirty students spend their entire day at the hospital, the first half working around the hospital, such as physical therapy aides, operating room technicians or in the psychology department under professional supervision. The second half of the day is spent in a classroom located in the hospital, where their instructor, Ron Silverman, teaches the standard high school subjects.

Biology Club

Seniors: Mark Braverman (vice-pres.), Mark Miller (president), Raisa Robinovich, Tom Strickland

The Biology Club, sponsored by Mildred Nevins and James Garrett, in the past has done disections and even set up a salt water aquarium for the Science Fair. In its future are planned trips to the Zoo and various medical institutions.

Behavioral Science

The Behavioral Science Club promotes a better understanding of psychological principles and practices among its members, through projects ranging from a lecture in hypnotics to a seminar in body language.

Chess Team

Seniors: Fred Scheupfer (captain)

The Chess Team plays in actual competition, and plans to in the future concentrate on a particular aspects of the game, such as openings, defenses, and offenses.

Presidential Classroom

Seniors: Linda Britchkow, Howard Miller, Eleanor Pelta, Susan Zlotnick, Not shown: Ken Verdone

Presidential Classroom is one of the most unique experiences offered by Washington. Every year six students are chosen to each spend a week in Washington D.C. with students from all over the country, meeting with congress, attending seminars, and getting a first-hand view of the government in action.

Cultural Heritage Club

Seniors: David Navazio, Lisa Palermo, Eric Woolf, Michael Zelson

Washington's Cultural Heritage Club was established to promote cultural interest between the various countries. They achieve this through slide presentations, student exchange programs and Easter trips abroad.

World Affairs Club

Seniors: Michael Erlich, Bart Gelman, Howard Miller (pres.), David Navazio, Eric Woolf, Michael Zelson.

The purpose of the World Affairs Club is to study the world's current political situation. It's activities include attending seminars and model United Nations.

Dennis Gold - Distributive Education Coordinator

The purpose of the Distributive Education Club is to establish a meaningful experience with employers, for all members work part of the day and attend school part-time. But work experience is not the only concern of DECA. In December, they put on a holiday show and gave out presents to the children at Shriner's Hospital.

Field Hockey

Field Hockey is a game of skill and precision combined with stamina, drive, and the desire to win. Each member of this year's team possessed these qualities, making the 1977-78 hockey season exciting and unique. Coached by Miss Dorothy Walton and Miss Carol Griffin, the team displayed more combined talent and ability than any other team ever to play on the hockey fields of George Washington. The team, led by co-captains Lisa Santerian and Janice McGill, was comprised primarily of seniors. They carry off the field an unforgettable experience along with many unforgettable memories of a fine season.

Thoughts of Life

Life is made up of ever so many partings welded together.

Dickens

True friendship is a plant of slow growth and must undergo and withstand the shocks of adversity before it is entitled to the appellation.

Washington

The Course of Life "78"

Looking back on my first day at Washington, I remember how little I felt, how big everyone else looked and how sure I was that I would never make it through the five years. That first year we didn't even merit an official title. WE called ourselves Freshman and kept that name for the following year, as we were the only class to be Freshmen and the youngest students in Washington for two years. Thus from the beginning, "78" was unique.

We were even declared the class with the most spirit in our pre-freshmen year. Our class sold the most buttons for the Spirit Day games, although all they said for us was "78" while the other classes had "FRESHMEN", "SOPHOMORE", "JUNIOR", or "SENIOR" printed on theirs. The female gym teachers played basketball against the girls junior and senior teams; the male gym teachers battled the boys teams. The results are a fuzzy memory, but we shocked the school by showing how much spirit we really had. The class with no name had the best attendance.

That first year was a learning experience. Remember

Freshmen day? We walked the halls in fear of people holding lipsticks and eggs. We wouldn't dare enter the lunchroom for fear of being lynched or possibly something worse. By our second year as Freshmen, however we knew better; we were the ones brandishing the lipsticks and eggs, lurking in the lunchroom ready to attack fellow unsuspecting classmates.

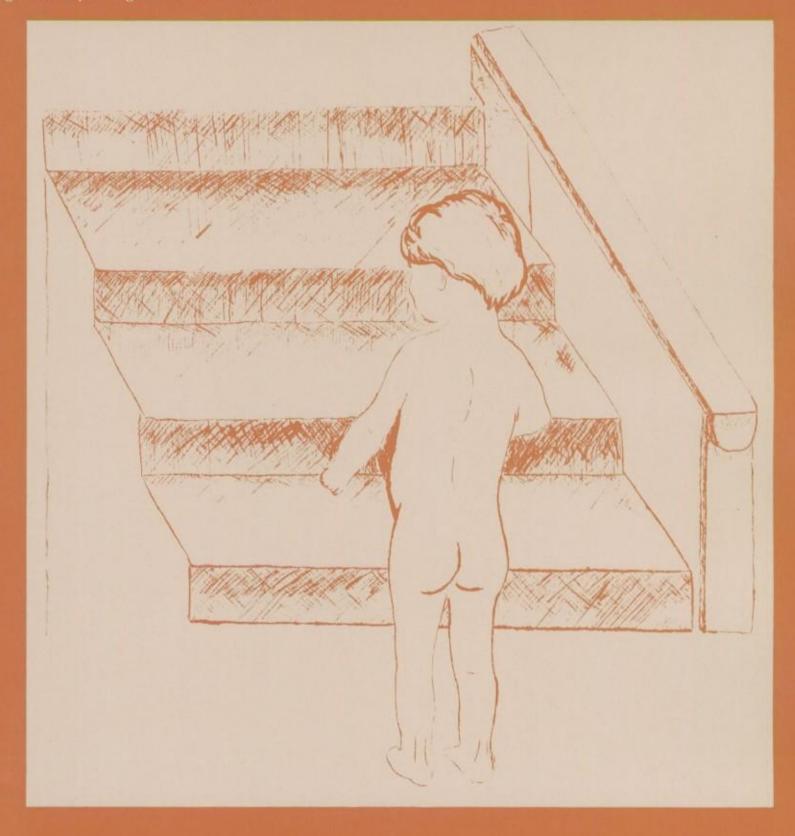

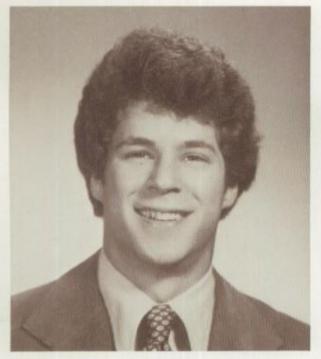

There was never enough room for us. I can remember our two years on late shift when the N.T.A.'s wouldn't let us in the building until 9:38 a.m. When we were let in, it was only to be packed in the glass corridor like cattle, before we could get to our lockers. What a stampede when the bell rang!

After we pushed our way out of the new building, it was a mad rush getting to advisory on time. Of course, being only Freshmen, we didn't deserve advisory rooms; actually there weren't enough for us. We were crammed into the only logical alternative, the auditorium. Each morning we were greeted by either Mr. Lichtman or Mr. Mossman yelling frantically for us to sit down and be quiet. Yelling at us to do it and getting us to do it were two completely different things. It wasn't until Harry Joe Brown took over that we paid any attention to the pleas for silence and promptness. Nobody hung around on the back steps when Mr. Brown was in charge. With the arrival of our sophomore year and Mr. Brown, we became officially the class of 1978, no longer the forgotten class.

I can remember how important I felt being older than someone . . . anyone. Now that we were sophomores, we were entitled to the rights and privilege of a "real" class, one of which being the election of class officers. When our class shows spirit we go all the way and that first election was decidedly no exception. To me, it looked as if at least half the class was running for one office or another. Everywhere I turned there were posters or circulars proclaiming "Vote for Me!" That sophomore year election was simply a preview of things to come. Roger Price was chosen as president of our class and has reclaimed that position faithfully ever since.

Life is just a jig-saw, we piece it bit by bit — into a lovely picture — every tiny part must fit — each little jagged fragment odd and strange though it may seem — is necessary when we try to puzzle out the scheme ... The sunny days, the dark days, and the hours of deep distress, the times of sorrow and dispair and joy and happiness — all go to make the picture — it's not easy, I'll admit — It all looks senseless sometimes and the parts don't seem to fit — but just have faith, keep trying, and you'll see the plan unroll — for everything fits in its place — to make the perfect whole. To dream . . .
is a simple thing;
it doesn't cost a cent,
you need only to turn your back

your ears,

stay . . .

Tenth grade was the year when we realized that our graduation really would come someday. It's strange thinking back to that morning in assembly. It was one of the first times that Mr. Brown had greeted us with his now familiar "Good Morning. It is now eight o'clock. May I please have the attention of the class of Nineteen Seventy-eight?" He went on that day however, that in two years we would be sitting in those seats for the last time. Two Years! That seemed like such a long time then, but soon we began to see that graduation day was not far off.

Late in November of our sophomore year, our class sponsored its first football game. The big day came! Our faces were red with excitement (or maybe it was the beginning of frostbite). We were so filled with talent that we smashed Frankford Thirty-two to nothing and picked up a Junior Varsity division championship. All of the players on this winning team were Sophomores, proving to all of Washington the worth of our class.

Tell me of laughter
Tell me of love
Somewhere a child contentedly sings
Bringing joy to my day
Hobbies and games to play

If nobody smiled and nobody cheered and nobody helped us along,

I shot an arrow into the air, it fell to earth, I knew not where; For, so swiftly it flew, the sight Could not follow it in its flight. I breathed a song into the air, It fell to earth, I knew not where; For who has sight so keen and strong, That it can follow the flight of song? Bodies grow old and furrowed with the years
And show the marks of all that lies behind,
But souls that have experienced much,
grow kind
And gather understanding from their tears.
Wiser in life, with tenderness they view
As did the Master, much that mortals do.

A Song

None knows the day that friends must part None knows how near is sorrow; If there be laughter in your heart, Don't hold it for to-morrow. Smile all the smiles you can to-day;

The going from a world we know
To one a wonder still
Is like the child's adversity
Whose vista is a hill,
Behind the hill is sorcery
And everything unknown,
But will the secret compensate
For climbing it alone?
Emily Dickinson
A young Apollo, golden-haired,
Stands dreaming on the verge of strife,
Magnificently unprepared
For the long littleness of life

Growth
Life is but growth, at first in strength and size,
Until at last is physical prime attained.
But there's a growth that's never Wholly gained:
An inner struggle always to be wise,
To see things earthly with clearer
eye;
Braver to be when flesh is sorely pained;
A Growth in spirit, constant and ingrained
Which all the scars and hurts of life defy

One of our more entertaining Sophomore activities was a roller skating party at Cornwells Heights Roller Skating Rink. Most of us didn't have our drivers' licenses when the evening of the party rolled around, so those people who were capable of driving traveled with packed cars. Even though the cars were filled to capacity there was no assurance that anyone knew the directions, and many of us got lost on the way. So much for the great minds of "78". When I finally walked in the building, all I saw were faces eating, talking, laughing, and going round and round and round. I wanted to join them right away. So I rushed over to the counter, checked my shoes, recieved my skates, and after ten minutes of lacing them on, I stood up. Wham! I was on the floor again; I forgot that I hadn't been on skates since I was six years old. From my position on the ground, I could see that many friends and classmates were no more sure of themselves than I was. With mutual cooperation, however, we eventually go to our feet and walked-skated our way to the rink. There we merged with the other skaters and also went round and round and round.

The Nature of Friendship

The quality of friendship, unlike that of mercy, is continually being strained. But it is the essence of friendship that it can stand the strain. Friendship is like love at its best; not blind but sympathetically all seeing; a support which does not wait for understanding; an act of faith which does not need, but always has, reason.

People associate love with sentimental feeling alone. But love includes much more. The act of love should bring all levels of the human being into play, his intuitions, his emotions, and his logic and mind as well.

The Nature of Love

Love isn't like a reservoir. You'll never drain it dry. It's much more like a natural spring. The longer and the farther that it flows, the stronger and the deeper and the clearer it becomes . . . Not until the creation and maintenance of decent conditions of life for all men are recognized and accepted as a common obligation of all men and all countries — not until then shall we, with a certain degree of justification, be able to speak of mankind as civilized.

Education in Action

Education means to acquaint the young with the best heritage of the human race. But while much of this heritage is expressed in words, it is effective only if these words become reality in the person of the teacher and in the practice and structure of society. Lorri Diane Klinger 10222 Selmer Place Senator 10, 11, 12; Jr. Gymnastics Trip Comm.;

It was sometime in May of that year, when the date of our last event as sophomores was announced. On June 17, 1976, we were going to Great Adventure Amusement Park in Jackson New Jersey for our sophomore class trip. We all hurried to pay our twelve dollars and insure a place on a bus, hopefully near our friends.

When the day arrived, the expressions on our faces were hardly those of joy and excitement. Instead, over five hundred students spent first through fifth period staring glumly out of classroom windows. It was going to rain! We'd been planning on the weather to be beautiful for this trip and when we were just about to go, the skies hung gray and heavy, and rain seemed certain. In spite of the weather, when the bell rang at 12:00 we poured eagerly out of school, quickly filling the fourteen buses which waited for us in front of the building. As soon as we boarded the buses, and even before they had left the parking lot we began to sing, cheer, and became altogether rowdy. I wonder what an observer might have thought, seeing a caravan of fourteen buses traveling down the highway and hearing non-stop singing from within. If anyone didn't know our football cheer "Hail to the Eagles" before the trip, he was sure to know it by the end.

When we arrived at 2:00, our first destination was the Safari Park. There we had the opportunity to view all species of animals from bears to llamas and every variation in between. Each was in its natural habitat and, because it was mating season, we had the opportunity to view the animals participating in some strange, but entirely natural, activities. Most of the animals were oblivious to our fourteen buses full of people; hundreds of people ride through their domain every day. The baboons, however, were not so tolerant of us. I remember sitting in my seat minding my own business when someone yelled, "Hey, there's a baboon climbing on our bus!" I looked and saw that it was true. Not only was there a baboon on our bus, there were baboons climbing up the sides of some of the other buses, also. We were lucky, though. One visitor to the Park had failed to heed the warnings posted around the entrance and had ventured fearlessly through the Safari Park in his car with the vinyl roof. A baboon found it extremely delicious and the man was last seen being led away gently and murmuring, "Aw my new roof ... please baboon, what did I ever do to you? . . . I always liked King Kong . . . "

After leaving the animals, we entered the Entertainment Park. There we were told that we could spend the next few hours where we liked, doing what we liked, within reason, of course. There was only one drawback. Mr. Brown threatened that if we were not back on the buses by 8:45 p.m. precisely, he would take away our senior year. He was only kidding (I think), but everyone made sure to be back at the buses on time, just in case.

There were many ways to spend our time in the Park, but of course everyone wanted to go on the famous rides. It was when we lined up for these that we found the weather to be in our favor. Because rain was predicted and expected at any time, anyone with sense would not go to an outdoor amusement park that day.

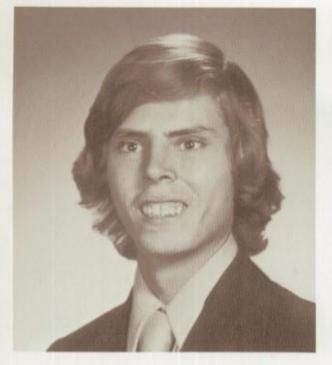

where in between. Oh, yes — a few of us were at the food. Let me be a little more exact: About four hundred ninety-eight of us were gobbling down pizzas, hotdogs, ice cream cones, popcorn, and fried-chicken legs. In short, we were eating anything that didn't wriggle too much when we held it.

At twenty minutes to eight, an announcement came booming over the loudspeaker. It was Mrs. Steinberg saying that the Class of '78' had better be on the buses in five minutes or else. Everyone stopped whatever he was doing and ran for the buses. I've never seen so many people move so fast: the six-million dollar man would have been trampled in the rush. On the ride home, we sang, laughed, switched seats constantly, and really had a wonderful time, which was a fitting end to a wonderful day.

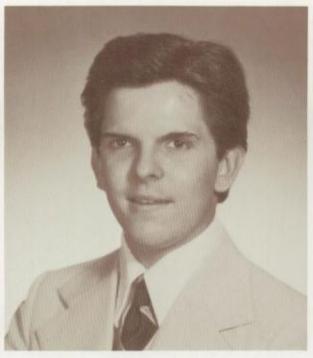

The Class of '78' is not noted for its good sense, however, and for our courageous act, (that of going despite the probability of rain) we were rewarded by having the Park virtually to ourselves with not a drop of rain all day.

Great Adventure is reknowned for its many exciting rides and with our five hundred representatives, I think that the Class of '78' must have gotten to each one at least once. We did have our favorites, though, and the log flume topped the list. Everyone went on that one; many of us five or six times. On the flume we sometimes had water fights, sometimes hung on for our lives, sometimes said witty things like, "Look Ma, no hands!", and always came away soaked. The roller coaster was another favorite, although not for Mrs. Steinberg. She was so white that five hundred sophomores crowded around her expecting a heart attack. It never happened, though. Good old Mrs. Steinberg bounced right back and headed for the largest ferris wheel in the world.

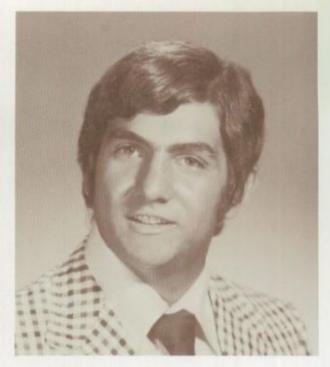

Besides the rides, there were many other activities going on in the Entertainment Park. Sophomores could be seen in the arena near the flume listening to singer Maureen McGovern, at the other side of the Park watching a water show featuring diving dolphins, and every-

Freedom to Be Yourself

I believe in freedom, in man's right to be himself, to assert himself and to fight all those who try to prevent him from being himself. But freedom is more than the absence of violent oppression. It is more than "freedom from." It is "freedom to" the freedom to be much, rather than to have much, or to use things and people.

Sometimes a friend is like a favorite book;
Knowing every thought and word and look.
And yet you like him handy on the shelf,
Because, somehow he warms your deeper self
He may not hold the thrill that others do,
But just because he's genuine and true,
Like some fine masterpiece beyond compare,
When the rest are gone, He'll be there.
Yes, friends are a lot like favorite books;
They don't depend upon their fame or looks
It's what's inside their deeper basic worth
That makes us hold some friends the best on earth.

A helping hand to the journey's end;
A loyal heart and a loving one, too,

One of our best moves as Sophomores was the choosing of our class button. A contest was held and from among fourteen entries, the design by Michael Rosenbaum was selected as winner. It depicted a clown being lifted into the air by balloons accompanied by the slogan "On our way up." A seventy-eighter will never be lost in a crowd because of this unique button. Of course, if he's in a crowd of seventy-eighters, that's a different story . . .

The summer came and went, and we trudged back into school in September, we found that something must have happened; we were Juniors!

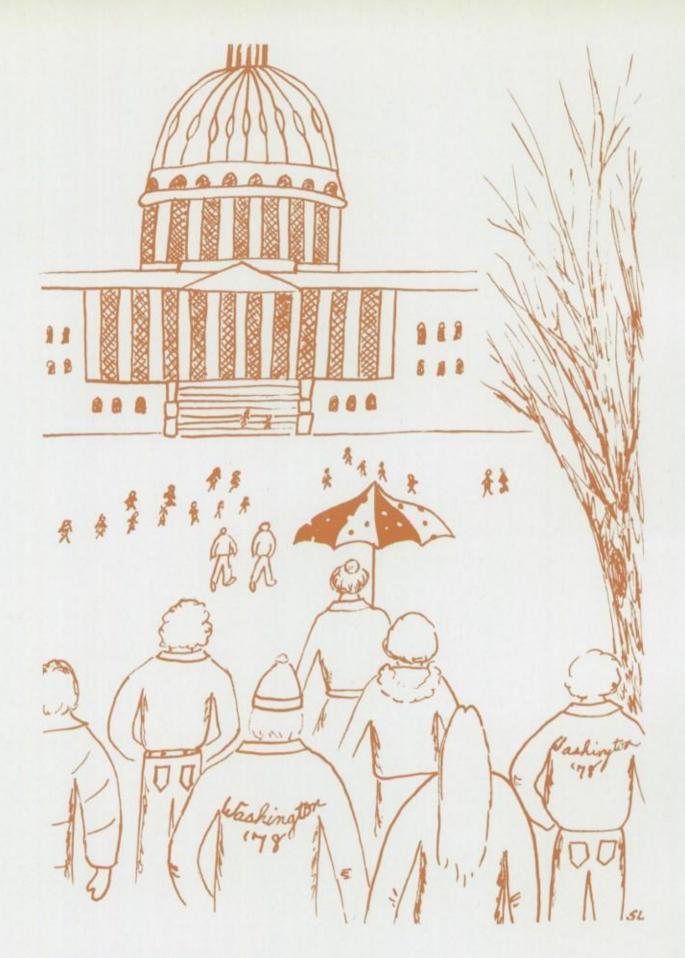

We started off the year with a repeat performance of the previous year. We had our second roller skating party. It was similar in most respects to its predecessor, except we were much more steady on our feet having had practice. Everything was going smoothly when I heard a cry of "Catch that wheel!" It was Shelly Bernstein. She had been skating nonchalantly when one of the wheels from her skates decided to solo. The runaway wheel was quickly apprehended, restored to its proper place, and severely reprimanded. Luckily, that was the only mishap, and the rest of the evening progressed as scheduled.

For the first few weeks of our junior year, it looked as if we were just recycling our sophomore year. We still had Mr. Brown and Roger, a junior skating party and we had our Junior Day football game. Like the year before, we won. This time Washington clobbered Olney nineteen to six.

Its difficult to remember the first few hours of our Junior Class Trip. All I can think of is rising before the sun, dragging my body to school, and shivering. There was a lot of shivering. We all comforted each other by saying that when the sun came out it would get warmer. It didn't. We did have the chance to thaw a little on the buses. We had been told to be at school promptly at 7:00 a.m., but it seems that no one had informed the chaperones. When all of them finally arrived, we departed, a long forty-five minutes later. Of course, that delay added to our four hour journey, causing us to arrive in Washington D.C. sometime around noon. This bus ride was a lot quieter than the one to Great Adventure because everyone except the bus drivers (and I'm not too sure about them) was sleeping.

Before seeing any sights, we stopped to acquire our tour guides. They all resembled Mary Poppins because of the umbrellas which they carried. No, it wasn't raining. Then the guides informed us that the umbrellas were their marks of distinction, so that we would not get separated. I thought that they were joking. We were eleventh graders; did they really think that we'd get lost? I changed my mind when I saw how many times I needed to find my Mary Poppins.

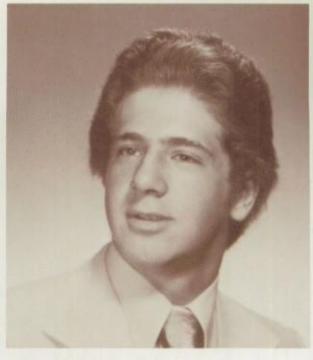

Our big day included walking in and then shortly out of nearly every building in Washington. Our schedule was so hectic that after every two or three stops were were permitted to breathe.

What is a Friend

What is friend? I will tell you. It is a person with whom you dare to be yourself. Your soul can be naked with him. He seems to ask of you to put on nothing, only to be what you are. He does not want you to be better or worse. When you are with him, you feel as a prisoner feels who has been declared innocent. You do not have to be on your guard. You can say what you think, so long as it is genuinely in your nature that lead others to misjudge you. With him you breathe freely. You can avow your vanities and envies and hates and vicious sparks, your meanness and absurdities and, in opening them up to him, they are lost, dissolved on the white ocean of him loyalty. He understands. You do not have to be careful. You can abuse him, neglect him, tolerate him. Best of all, you can keep still with him. It makes no matter. He likes you — He is like fire that purges to the bone. He understands. You can weep with him, son with him, laugh with him, pray with him. He sees, knows, and loves you. A friend? What is a friend? With whom you dare to be yourself.

Outside of the Smithsonian was a group of Hare Krishna devotees trying to raise money by selling carnations. We fought for the red and white ones, but ended up with the pink leftovers and the spiritual pamphlets. They followed us and provoked us until we all had at least one flower; we looked like a bunch of flower children, rather than the sophisticated Juniors we were.

After eating our packed lunches in the cafeteria of the Smithsonian, we went to the Kennedy Center for the Performing Arts. This building was magnificent with its new chandeliers, red carpeting, and basically luxurious surroundings. When we saw the Hundreds of flags from around the world, we tried to determine what nation each one was from. Then we were herded into the buses again and it was off to the Capitol building. When we arrived, we saw what looked to me to be a giant, unfinished puzzle, its pieces scattered all around the grounds. The confusion was because a platform was being built in front of the Capitol building for the coming inauguration of good ol' Jimmy.

Our next destination was the cemetery! Winding through the roadway of Arlington cemetery, all I could see were green hills spotted with white tombstones. At the Tomb of the Unknown Soldier, the guard walked mechanically, not even flinching when the brisk wind blew. If we were freezing, then he must have been an icicle because he had been out there pacing for four hours without even an overcoat. After the changing of the guards, we watched solemnly as Roger and Mr. Brown placed a wreath on the tomb for our class. Before leaving Arlington, we stopped at the eternal flame, which was kindled in memory of John and Robert Kennedy. Then we walked and walked and walked in the bitter cold downhill to our buses.

The next stop on the agenda was the Lincoln Memorial. We were there long enough to go all the way up the steps, just in time to find out that we had to go all of the way back down.

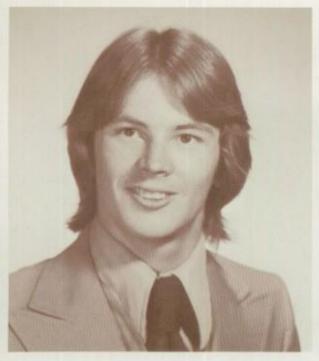

Hogates was out last and final stop before George Washington High School. There, we sat in small intimate groups of ten and rapidly ate our turkey dinners. After dinner there was a hectic scramble for the bathrooms. Mr. Brown directed traffic. The girls were given only thirty-five seconds apiece. Although, ninety-eight people were allowed in at one time I didn't get in at all.

The bus ride home was totally uneventful until someone yelled "Let's see how many people we can fit in the bathroom!" With much pushing and shoving we managed to stuff ten people inside. Then, everyone took a deep breath and number eleven was squeezed into the two foot by two foot space. We were pried out with crowbars. The bathroom will never be the same again. At 11:00 our caravan finally returned to school. Five-hundred exhausted, thawing Juniors filed into the cars of parents and friends saying goodbye until the next time.

The Class of '78' is known for the fun times we have had and also for the good deeds we have done. One such deed was the adoption of three children. On December 22, 1976, the appeal was made to the class. We needed five-hundred and forty dollars to become parents. Once again volunteers ran up and down the aisles of the auditorium carrying plastic bags, hats, buckets, or whatever was convenient for carrying the money collected. Mr. Brown was constantly bellowing, "We need more money." We made our goal with a grand total of five-hundred and seventy-three dollars. Is that what kids are worth today?

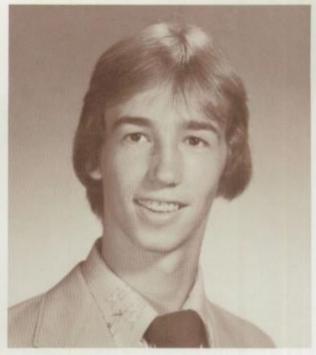

We've got class! That's the saying on our class teeshirts. They were designed by Michael Rosenbaum in the same style as our buttons. One of the best days of our Junior year was when 1100 seventy-eighters came into assembly wearing blue and gold.

Be the Best of Whatever You Are

We all dream of great deeds and high postions, away from the pettiness and humdrum of ordinary life. Yet success is not occupying a lofty place or doing conspicuous work; it is being the best that is in you. Rattling around in too big a job is worse than filling a small one to overflowing. Dream, aspire by all means; but do not ruin the life you must lead by dreaming pipe dreams of the one you would like to lead. Make the most of what you have and are.

Keep Your Dreems

Keep your dreams — they're richer far Than the facts discovered are.
Do not seek all things to touch;
Do not want to know too much.

Keep some glory undefiled.

Still see ships sailing there.

If the things of bad and good
Were by all men understood,

Joy denied to men grown wise.

Are we wrong in all our teaching
That triumph lies in summit reaching
That all enjoyment earthy lies
In being proud and shrewd and wise;
That to be rich is to be glad
Since little else from life is had?

Should we not pen a different story
Concerning human peace and glory?
Should we not to our children tell
That true success is serving well;
That all life's happiness depends
Less on wealth and more on friends? . . .

Should we not make a little clearer
The fact that happiness lies nearer
That youth may early guess or know
For all of us on earth below;
That countless pleasures close at hand
Are strewn at every one's command?

voiced our opinions when they were played. To put it more bluntly, we BOOed them. We did have a fair election, however, and when the ballots were counted, "I Need You" finally won with "If" as a close second. With the theme song established, the Prom was official.

There were so many things to be done: A chairperson had to be chosen, a menu had to be decided upon, a necklace had to be designed, along with many other chores. Nancy Jacobs was chosen as chairperson, and with the help of a willing committee, The Junior Prom began to take shape. Students spent their lunch periods decorating the gyms, and as a final touch, the Prom committee transformed a girls bathroom into Hawaii under a setting sun. We painted for three days, often going home with remnants of the blue sky super-imposed on our clothes and bodies.

On May sixth, as I walked down the hallways of school, all I could hear was talk of long dresses, three-piece suits, and expensive restaurants. Our last big event as Juniors was only one day away!

At 8:00 p.m. on May seventh, the gym began to fill with Juniors. We had been in that gym hundreds of times before, but for some reason, everything looked different that night. The drab colorless walls were hidden by red and white streamers, while the people in the room were in clothes never worn there before. In the center of the room was a fountain fashioned by the Junior Prom committee to add a touch of glamour to the evening. Unexpectedly, it also provided a touch of comedy. One curious Junior, in order to get a closer look at the mechanisms of the fountain, leaned over the edge and, what else?, fell in. He was a real splash!

Eight hundred people showed up for the 1978 Juinor Prom — the biggest crowd ever at any George Washington Junior Prom. Again we had shown that we were the best.

One day early in April, I arrived at our first Junior Prom meeting, ready for action. We were all eager to begin planning and were full of confidence that our Junior Prom would be the best ever.

The first thing that we needed was a theme song for the Prom. We heard portions of the five nominated songs during one assembly. Some of the songs were far from what any of the seventy-eighters wanted, and we clearly Move-up day was the day we had all been waiting for. At last, we would be the oldest class in the school, the leaders, SENIORS! Traditionally, Move-up day was a day on which everyone got dressed up; not quite the regal attire of the Prom, but definitely more than jeans and tee-shirts. We had planned to spend the morning listening to speeches in Assembly as each important function of the school was handed down from the graduating students to the new seniors — us. Then, many of us assumed that we would follow in the footsteps of the classes before us and leave the school early to have lunch at some restaurant normally beyond our means. However, this year it was suggested that we stay in the building until the regular 1:45 dimissal. It was very strongly suggested. Most of us stayed.

For that last week of school, we were officially called Seniors, but it wasn't until we returned the next fall that I really felt that I was one. That September, we came to George Washington as we had any other year but with a big difference. We were no longer the babies of the school, the forgotten class. We had no need to prove ourselves as we did when we were Sophomores. Or time as Juniors, the most agonizing year, the time when all we could think about was mountains of homework and the words, "Only one more year to go." kept resounding in our heads, was finished. This time we were the Seniors.

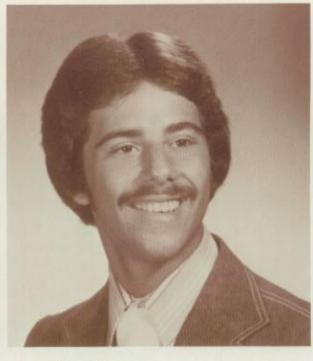

So many things happened this last year. Once again we had a rollerskating party and the succession of football games. These old standbys were joined by our iceskating party, Senior Class Trip, and finally the Senior Prom.

Now we're graduating, and looking back on my fears of the school when I was a Freshman, it's hard to believe that I'd every really felt such doubts about this place. I thought that I'd never get through the five years, and now I have. We all have. The Class of "78" has made it.

Science and the Future

The devices which science has given us are neither good nor evil in themselves. Their capacity for good or evil lies in the use we make of them. Thus, not in the laboratory, but in the human heart, in the realm of the spirit, lies the challenge of the future.

Freedom to Be Yourself

I believe in freedom, in man's right to be himself, to assert himself and to fight all those who try to prevent him from being himself. But freedom is more than the absence of violent oppression. It is more than "freedom from." It is "freedom to" the freedom to become independent; the freedom to be much, rather than to have much, or to use things and people.

A child ran alone,
And nothing followed that he felt.
He never heard the sky moan
For old men. He never knelt
To call the hounds that behind him ran alone
And searching smelt.
He did not hear their cries,
For there was curving earth between.
But he is taller now, and wise
Enough to listen as they lean
Upon the wind that can turn and bring their cries
So clear and keen . . .

On February 1, 1977, a friend and a close neighbor Richard Marvel, was taken to his final reward.

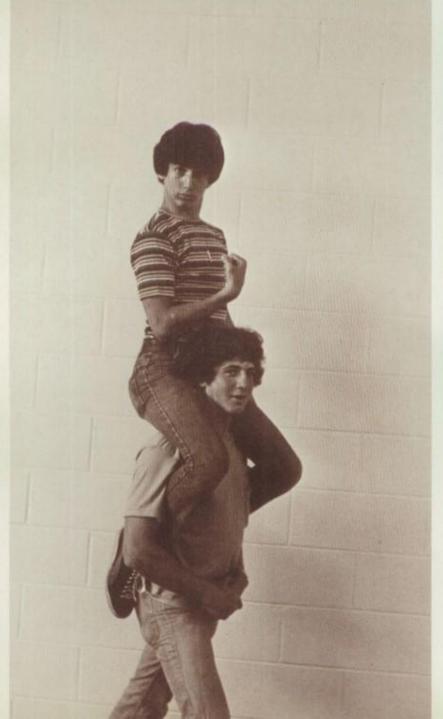

There was never a kinder, more gentle and more patient boy around. A pleasing personality and always ready to lend a hand to those in trouble were some of the attributes possessed by Richard.

It is most difficult to face each day without seeing him walk down the street and wave a hello to all who passed by him. It has been more than a privilege to know him and to realize that the world contained such a marvelous person.

Although we are all saddened by his loss, we can be happy for Richard, for he is now at peace which is what we all hope for and are striving to attain some day.

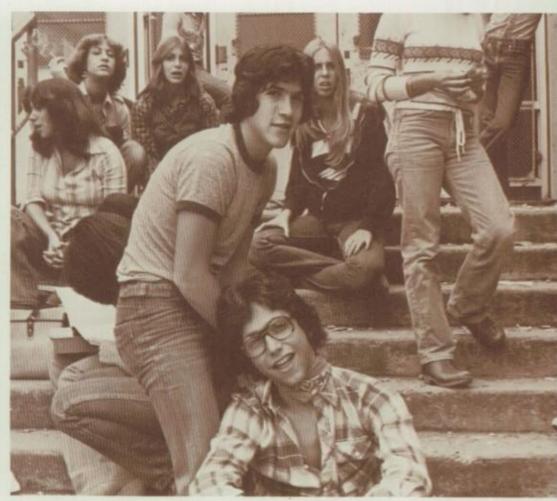

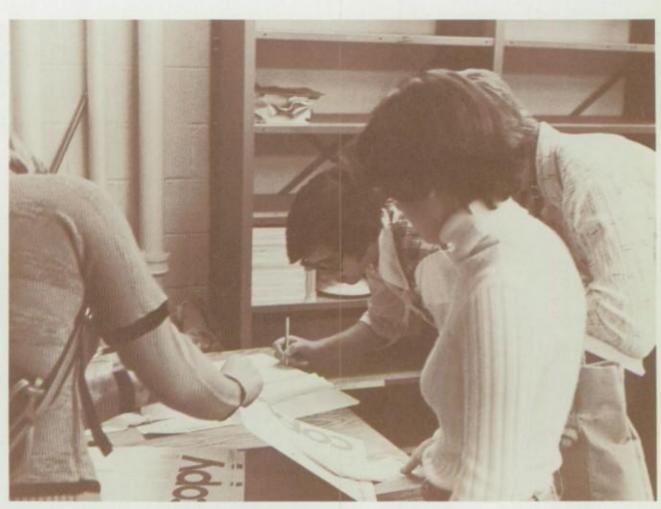

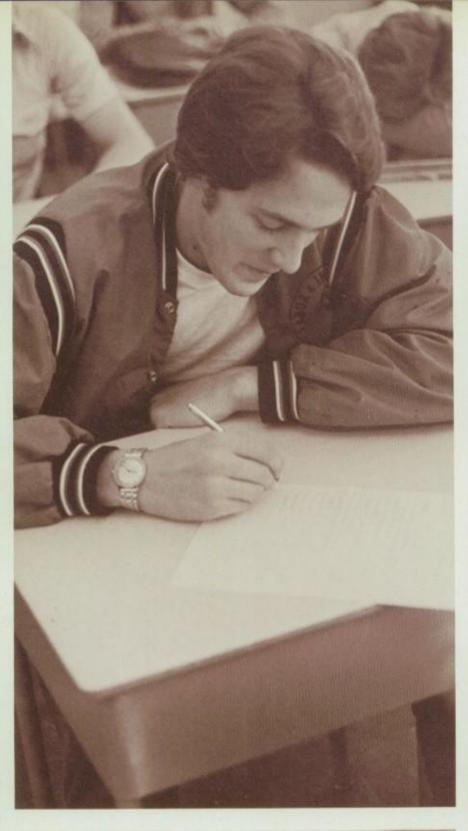

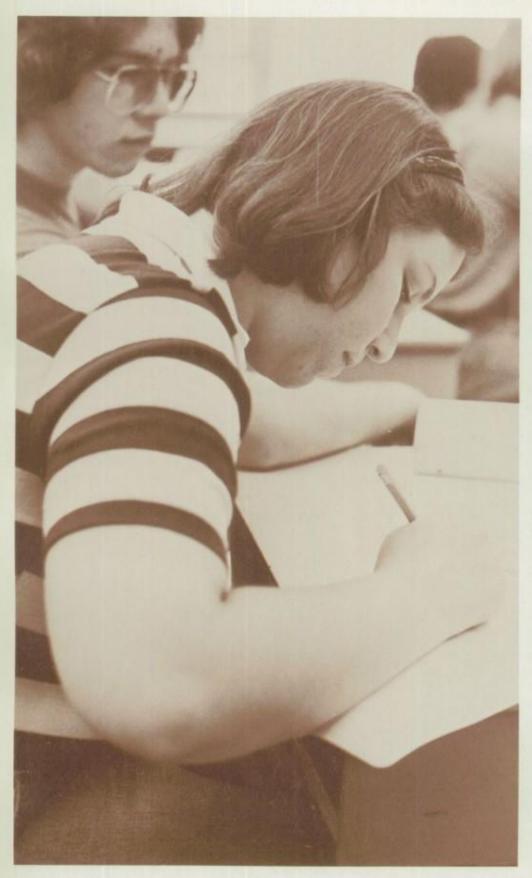

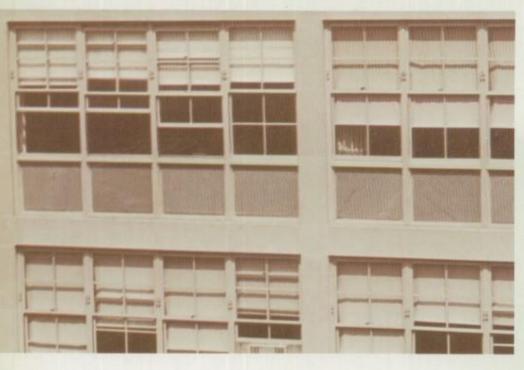

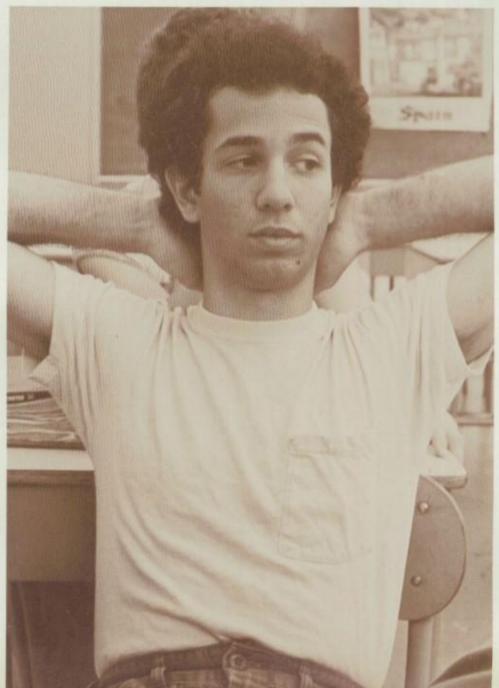

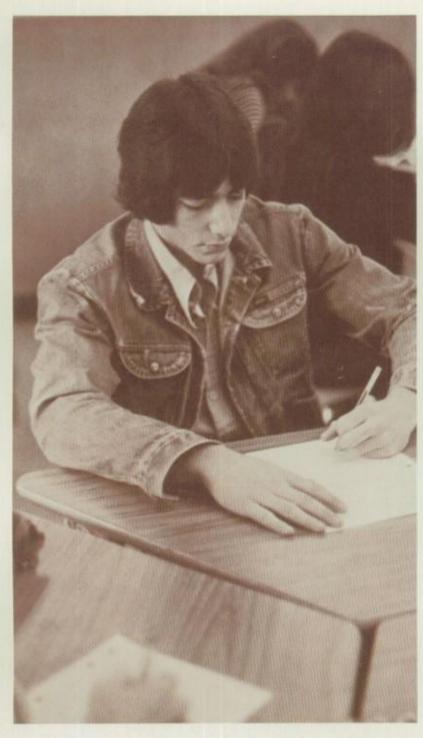

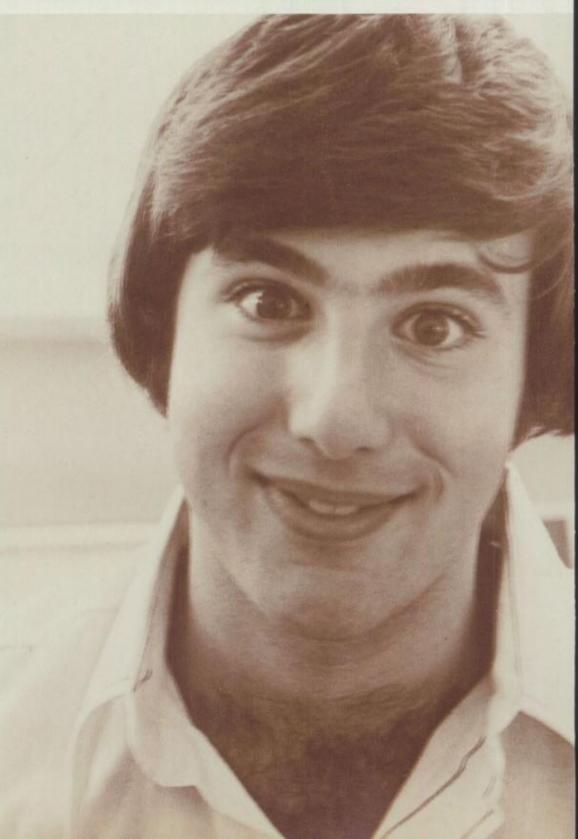

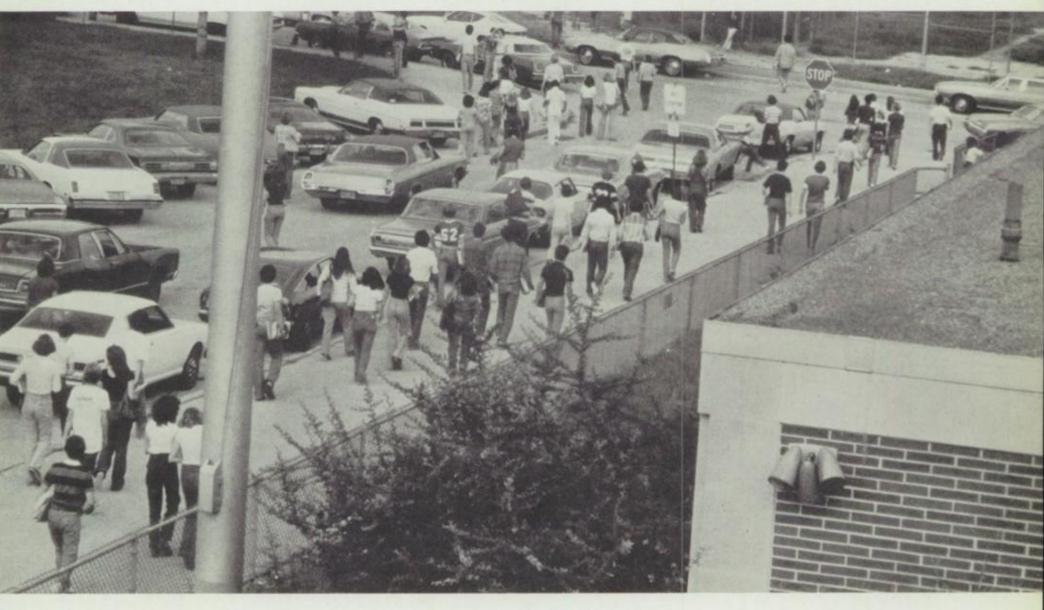

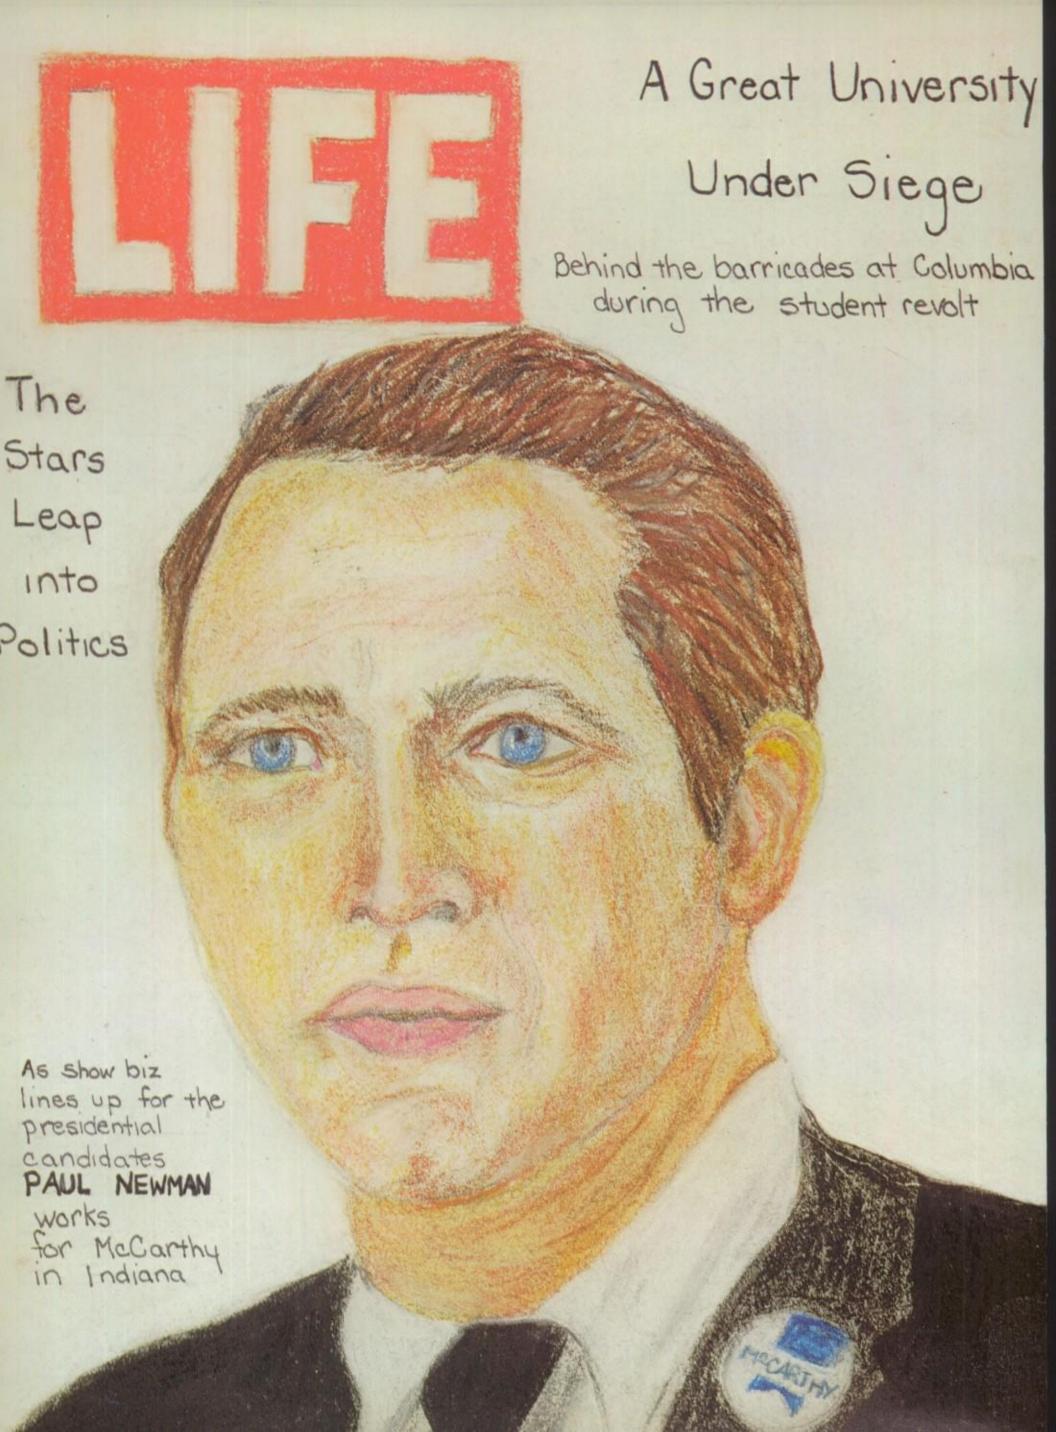

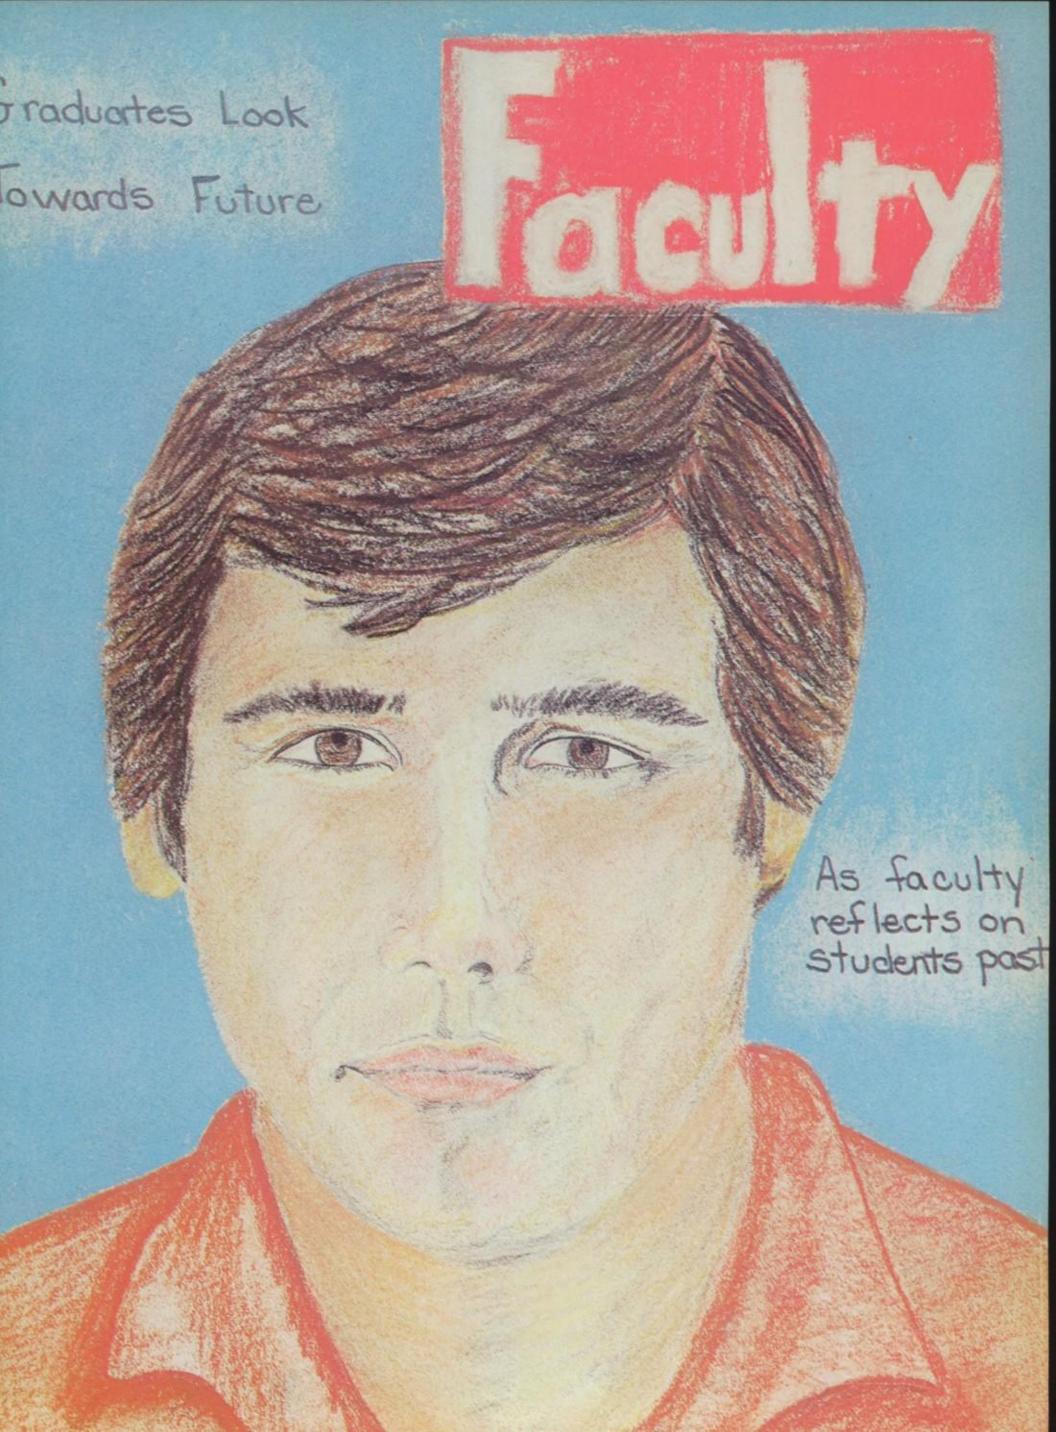

Sigh oh teachers and make a fuss, Our charges are flitting past, With them goes a piece of us, So how long can we last?

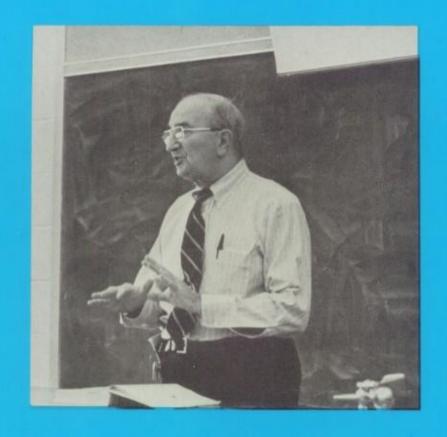

We live a little, and die a lot, Each concept is a breath, Yet each must learn, for that's his lot, No breath is there in death.

Seventy-Eight is at the gate, Where fortunes taunt the wary, Eyes are rivoted on their fate, But youth is never scary.

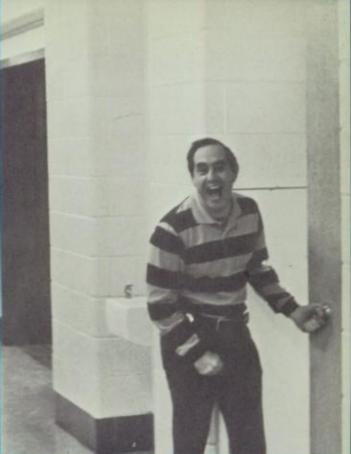

Time is a tonic-bought with anguish — Brewed with love and heart, Simmered and strained, allowed to languish Then ripped, so thoughts can part.

Seventy-Eight, God speed you all, Farewell dear children, farewell. Lead us forward, Don't let us fall, Your deeds our future will spell.

Principal

Dear Class of '78,

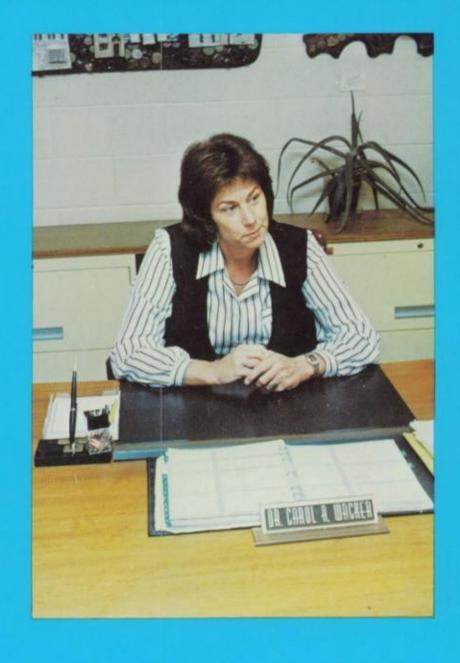

The theme of your yearbook, "The Course of Life", is quite appropriate to the time you have spent at George Washington High School. The high school years encompassed a time in which you grew from adolescence to adulthood. These years typify a time in which you were exposed to and interacted with a complex variety of learnings, attitudes, and behaviors. This period in your lives represented a time when you began to assume your role as a responsible adult.

In this portion of your life, most of you began to assume many of the critical decisions and responsibilities which were once the exclusive province of your parents. And in your assumption of these responsibilities, these decisions, you began to control and determine a great deal of your future. As Robert Louis Stevenson said, "Everybody, soon or late, sits down to a banquet of consequences."

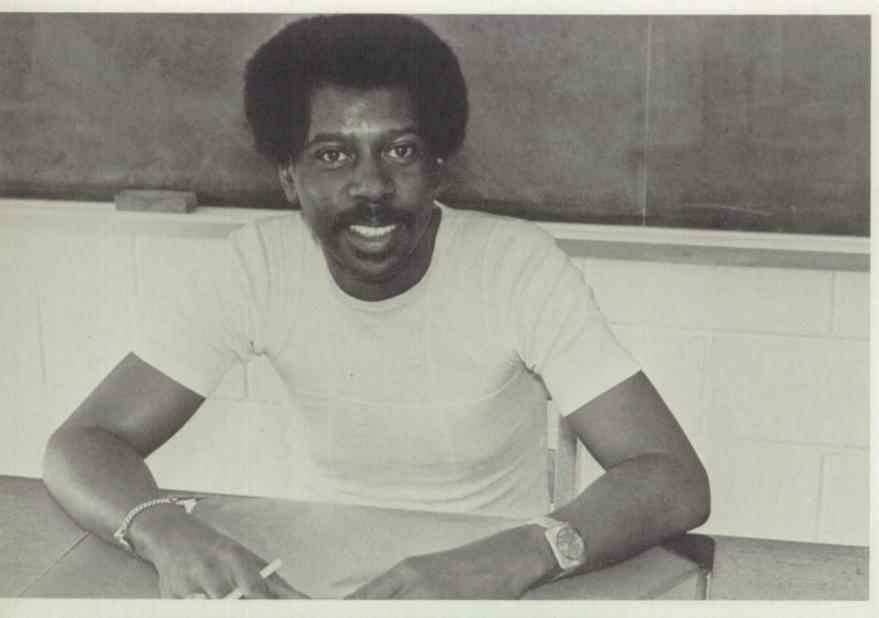

It is my hope that we of the staff of George Washington High School have served and guided you well so that your "banquet of consequences" represents fulfillment, success, and happiness. Please accept my best wishes for all future endeavors.

Daw A. Wacher

To the Class of 1978,

Congratulations and best wishes to you for your future success as caring and concerned individuals. Remember your days at Washington, the finest high school in Philadelphia at the present time. As you proceed up the ladder of successful accomplishment, may your feats reflect honor on George Washington High and its staff of dedicated men and women. Good luck!

To the Class of 1978:

I would like to take this opportunity to congratulate the members of the class of 1978 for earning the distinction of being one of the finest classes to graduate from our high school. I have had the privilege and pleasure of working with the sponsor, the officers, and members of this outstanding class during the past several years. You have brought great distinction to our school as a result of the very excellent way in which you have conducted yourselves in all of your activities.

I trust that you will use the cognitive, social and cultural knowledge and skills that you have learned not only in our school, but in other schools, to the benefit of your community and mankind. I urge you to give of yourself and share your many talents and fine attributes with others. You will find that this will not only be beneficial and therapeutic to you, but will assist our society by having capable persons like yourselves sincerely and genuinely contribute to solving the many complex problems and issues currently plaguing our society.

Again, you have my sincerest congratulations and best wishes for your outstanding achievement and cooperation in experiencing many successful endeavors at our school. As a class, I wish each and every one of you the greatest luck, success, happiness and achievement that life can offer you throughout the many years.

Alvin Vaughn

Principals

To the Class of 1978:

You will always be of special significance to me for we "arrived" at George Washington High School together — you in your Sophomore year as the official class of 1978 and Barbara Braman as Vice Principal-4.

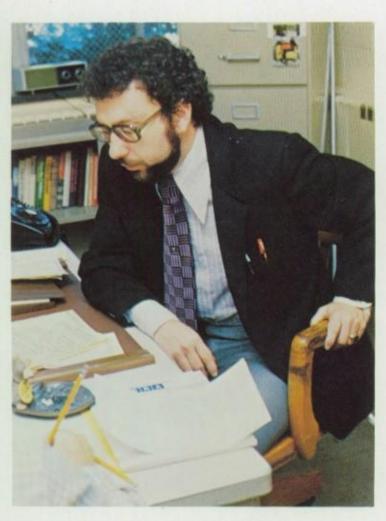

My first introduction to the school was at your class assembly and you treated me with kindness and respect. In looking back, I am certain that it was your reception of me on that October morning in 1975 which assured me that Washington was, indeed, a fine place to work and I was truly fortunate to be a part of it.

The graduation of the Class of 1978 finds me with mixed emotions. I am thrilled with your growth from eager Sophomores to responsible young adults and I am filled with confidence that as you move along in "The Course of Life" you will continue to successfully meet and accept all of its challenges with determination and integrity. Yet, I feel a great deal of sadness for I know that neither Washington nor I will ever be quite the same again without The Class of 1978.

All of my best wishes are with you.

Barbara Braman

Dr. Sheldon Pavel

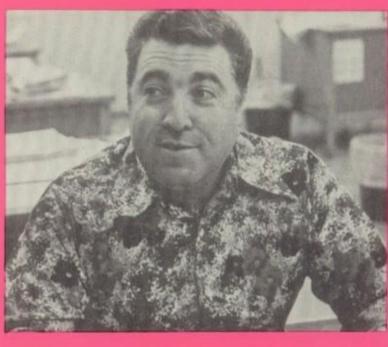

Ten years ago, while running for President, Robert Kennedy often quoted George Bernard Shaw by stating to the people who would hear him speak, "You see things as they are and you say why, but I dream things that never were and say why not." Apply these words and their message individually to each of your lives and to your hopes and aspirations. Each one of you has the greatest gift possible, a thinking, feeling mind. Use it to dream, to wonder, and to become what you will.

Dear kindly staff of teachers, It's you we now address About the many features Which cause our minds unrest.

To those who taught us History, The Presidents and more, The dates are still a mystery And the essays we abhor.

To those who taught us numbers, Intellignence we fake, For we'd be incompetent bumblers If our calculators you'd take.

To those who taught us in the gym And caused our bodies pain, Although you showed much vigor and vim, You left us rather lame.

To those who taught us everyday Spanish, French, and such, Most fluently we now can say That we don't know too much.

To those who taught us science, Though complacently we sat, We say now in defiance We still think the world's flat.

To those who call roll every morn, Advisors, let us state. It isn't you; since we were born, We've always arrived late.

To those who taught us English, We share with you our plight. Ain't nothing rhymes with English And it's clear that we can't write.

As now it's time that we depart, From Washington we fly. We know you've given us the start, So Thank-you and Goodbye.

Legend XIV Editor-in-chief

Legend XIV is soon to become the most valuable memory of the avenues we've traveled through Washingtop. Though it is impossible to portray all facets of high school life in this legend, the pictures and story connect the fragments of our freshman, sophomore, and junior as well as senior years. One can view the opening of our chrysalis through the entire evolution of our true spirit. The yearbook staff has woven a path which will help to bring alive these memories. It is up to all of us to forge from stone to stone, bridging enough of the chasm to remember for ourselves all that has come to pass along the way. As you amble down memory lane, it is our hope that on these pages the excitement, achievement, pleasure, fun, love, laughter, warmth, spirit, and even the sadness shared by the class of 78 will remind you of our course of life.

Poem Before Departure

This place moves from me like a slow tide pulling out against the moon. It doesn't matter if I push up earth against the door, or turn the key within the lock even as I lean, the tree trembles in the wood, the pebble flies within the rock.

Or if I stay like a crouched animal within, I watch the walls move back, grow membrane-thin; leaves sprayed against the pane blur a little at the edge; vines pale and lossen on the sill.

It does not matter that I prop beneath the knob tables, chairs.
Something recedes that once was still, what was mobile, stares.

The time is soon, though I, longing to be caught by root or weed, resist departure as a kind of death.

Something began and ended here.

One morning, whether I dare or do not dare,
I shall look up, unroofed, to sky;
I shall gaze through timber that I once leaned my fear against — and knock on air.

Jean Burden
